TRAVELS: Jacob and Agnes were living in Goochland County, Virginia when their first 2 children were born in 1763 and 1765. The St. James Northam Parish Register (The Douglas Register), Goochland County Virginia was a register kept by the ministers of the Angelican Church, the official church of the Colony of Virginia. The Reverend William Douglas kept records of all births, marriages, etc. This register has the earliest known information about Jacob Woodall. In 1770 they were living in Granville County, North Carolina where they were listed in the will of Samuel Hicks. They appear on the Granville County census between the years of 1784 to 1787. Records in Granville and Johnston County, North Carolina indicate that Jacob and Agnes had 3 more children. In 1790 the census of the United States shows Jacob had moved to the Johnston County, North Carolina Newbern District. The 1786 census shows 2 males between 21 and 60; 2 males under 21 and over 60; 3 females. In August of 1787 Jacob and his son James sold some of the land he and Agnes inherited from Samuel Hicks. Agnes relinquished her right of dower in the land and it was sold to Lewis Parham. The 1790 census of Newbern District, Johnston County, North Carolina shows 1 male over 16, 2 males under 16 and 2 females. Jacob purchased land in Johnston County, North Carolina from Matthew Mathis in November of 1790 and the purchase was proved in court by oath of Absolom Woodall.

Note: BIOGRAPHY: At a very young age Joseph is thought to have been given to his grandparents, John Brett and Susannah Brasey, to rear in their home in Bertie Co, NC. His presumed parents were married less than a year. Because they married 6 months after Joseph's birth, the young age of both John Jr and Freeloove, the fact the marriage only lasted a few months and they were both known to live in the area all point to the parents as being John Jr and Freeloove.

The Family Search LDS site lists a birth for Joseph Britt b. 16 June 1731 in Canterbury, Windham Co, Ct. The only name listed other than Joseph Britt is a "Family Relative, Lottie, C.R. Carter".

The spelling for "Britt" was different than the surname spelling by the New England Brett families. John Britt Jr converted his surname to "Britt" at a very early age either to differentiate him from his father, John Brett or resentment because his father left the family when John Jr was only 4 years old. John Jr's father left him out of his WILL with the statement that he thought his son was deceased so he left 100. acre estate to his grandson, Joseph, whom he had reared in lieu of a portion to his son, John Jr. He did include his daughter, Hannah, from his Boston family in his WILL.

Richard was born abt 1725 in Brunswick Co, Va and Olive (Davis?) was born abt 1735. They had 2 sons born in Edgecombe Co, NC: William b. 1754 and John b. 14 April 1761.  Note: BIOGRAPHY: John Brett was born in Rattlesden, England in 1667. He was the first of 4 children born to John Brett and Elizabeth Waters. John and Elizabeth were married in Hurstmonceux, Sussex, England in 1778. It is thought that marriage was dissolved in 1685 as that was the last record of John Brett's annual trips from England to Va. The 1685 trip made by John Brett was on the Ship Stephen, which left London 20 August 1685. Another ship, the Globe left London port 12 August 1685 bound for Maryland. This ship also had a John Brett passenger. The John Brett passenger on the Globe is thought to be the son of John Brett who was a passenger on the ship Stephen which left London port 8 days later bound for Va. Young John Brett is presumed to move to Bridgewater, Ma to live with his "uncle" William Jr Brett who had lived in Rattlesden, England as a brother to young John's father until he was 10 years at which time he went back to his biological father, William Brett SR. William Jr Brett married Elizabeth Carey in 1781 and was living in Bridgewater at the time. John's father was living by himself in Isle of Wight, Va and was unable to take care care of the 16 year old son. He did not remarry until 1699.
 There is no record of young John's itinerary between his arrival in America and his marriage to Anne Barnsdale in Boston, Ma in 1710, although it must be presumed he was an apprentice in the maritime industry.

John Brett was a maritime captain sailing from USA to England. There are several references in Peter Coldham's book: Complete Book of Emigrants 1700-1750, describing the dates of his sailing starting 15-19 September 1711, ship: CATHERINE, Boston brigantine; sailing from Plymouth for Boston. 1-26 March 1713, ship: AURORA, sailing from Plymouth for New England; aboard a representative of John Brett & Co. (John may have owned the shipping line). 27-29 November 1727 John Brett captained the ship, PRINCESS AMELIA, bound from Weymouth, England for Virginia. 5 March 1737 John Brett captained the ship, ELIZABETH, bound from Weymouth, England to Virginia. This may have been John's last trip as he died in 1738 based on the date of his WILL.

The ship destinations listed above support the assumption made that John Brett left Boston between 1713-1727 for Virginia where he married Susannah Bressey, his father's widow, abt 1718 and died abt 1738 in Bertie Co, NC.

Note: From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia John Woodall, George Glover, published 1639

John Woodall (1570–1643) was an English military surgeon, Paracelsian chemist, businessman, linguist and diplomat. He made a fortune through the stocking of medical chests for the East India Company and later the armed forces of England. He is remembered for his authorship of The Surgeon's Mate which was the standard text to advise ships surgeons on medical treatments while at sea and contains an advanced view on the treatment of scurvy.

Woodall was the son of Richard Woodall of Warwick, and was apprenticed around the age of 16 or 17 to a London barber surgeon. He did not finish his apprenticeship but gained experience from the age of nineteen in 1589 as a surgeon with Lord Willoughby's regiment on its expedition to support the Protestant Henry IV of France and King of Navarre in his campaign against the Catholic League of Normandy. He returned in 1590.

Woodall is known to have then lived and worked as a surgeon in Polonia and Stade, a Hanseatic port near Hamburg, whilst there he was occasionally employed as a German interpreter by visiting English ambassadors.

In 1599 he was admitted to the Barber-Surgeons Company of London as a freeman but continued to live mainly on the continent in Holland, until 1603 when he took up residence in Wood Street, London. He was able to offer treatment to victims of the plague epidemic. At unspecified times in his life he contracted bubonic plague and survived, writing of this, "...for I had it twice, namely at two severall Plague times in my Groyne."

In 1604 James I of England sent an embassy, led by Sir Thomas Smith, Governor of the East India Company, to Poland and possibly to Russia. Woodall was included for his knowledge of the region and command of the languages. The association with Smith was a fruitful one for Woodall, for in 1612 Sir Thomas appointed Woodall to serve as Surgeon General to the East India Company. His duties were described as follows:

"The Said Chiurgion and the Deputy shall have a place of lodging in the Yard, where one of them shall give Attendance every working day from morning until night, to cure any person or persons who may be hurt in the Service of this Company and the like in all their Ships, riding at Anchor at Deptford and Blackwell, and at Erith, where he shall also keepe a Deputy with his chest furnished, to remaine there continually until all the said ships have sayled and appointing fit and able Surgeons and Surgeon's Mates for their ships and services, as also the fitting and furnishing of their Chests with medicines and other appurtenances thereto."

Woodall's career then progressed rapidly with election as a surgeon at St. Bartholomew's Hospital in 1616 where he was a colleague of Sir William Harvey. He was promoted to examiner in the Barber-Surgeons Company in 1626, to warden in 1627 and then master in 1633.

He suffered a setback, however, in 1625 when he served a writ on Sir Thomas Merry, a servant of the King who owed Woodall money. For his effrontery to royal privilege, the Lord Steward had Woodall imprisoned. He was briefly released to supervise surgeon's chests for the next fleet at the request of the East India Company, but was then jailed once more. He was only freed when he issued a contrite apology.

The following year of 1626 the Privy Council decided to pay the Barber-Surgeons Company fixed allowances to furnish medical chests for both the army and navy, and Woodall was appointed to supervise this scheme in addition to his long-standing similar commitment to the East India Company.

He was eventually dismissed by the East India Company in 1635 for financial reasons, but retained a monopoly on supplying the Company's medical chests until he died in 1643, aged 73.

14. FAMILY TREES

Each family tree shows the reported children, parents, grandparents and great-grandparents of a family group. In order to reduce redundancy, any family group which is wholly included within another family tree may not be reported separately.

Above each of the great-grandparent boxes (top row), a continuation family tree reference number is shown if the great-grandparent is recorded as a child in the continuation tree. A continuation reference number is also shown to the left of a grandparent or parent box if that individual has siblings reported in the continuation tree; and beneath a child box (bottom row) if that individual has children reported in the continuation tree.

In cases of multiple marriages, a continuation reference number preceded by "=" is shown to the right of a parent box. This number references the previous and/or next tree in which that individual is shown with another partner.

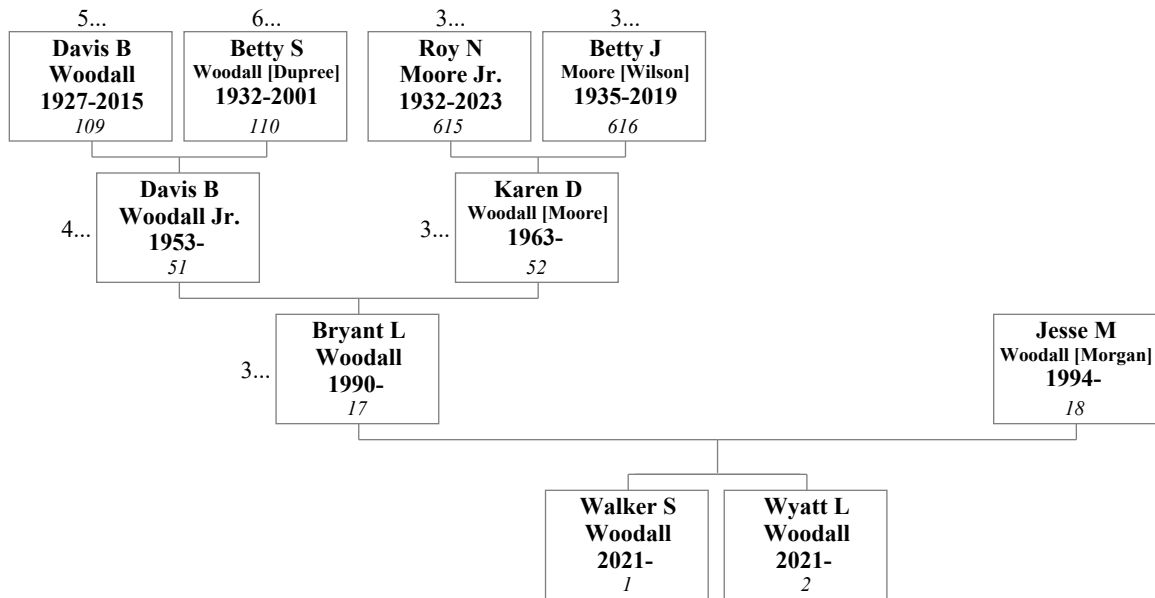

In cases of adopted (or fostered) children, the parental connection is shown with a dashed line and a continuation reference number preceded by "-" is shown within the individual's box. This number references the tree in which that individual is shown with his or her natural parents.
